NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTIONS

TO ALL PARTIES AND THEIR ATTORNEYS OF RECORD:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE THAT on December 4, 2023 at 2:00 PM, or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard in Department 23, Courtroom 8A of the above entitled Court, located at 400 County Center, Redwood City, California 94063, the Honorable V. Raymond Swope presiding, Defendants the County of San Mateo and Christina Corpus, in her official capacity as Sheriff of San Mateo County (collectively, “Defendants”) will, and hereby do, move this Court to enter an order of judgment on the pleadings with regard to all of the claims for relief of A.B.O. Comix, Kenneth Roberts, Zachary Greenberg, Ruben Gonzalez-Magallanes, Domingo Aguilar, Kevin Prasad, and Wumi Oladipo’s (collectively, “Plaintiffs”) pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure § 438. The Motion will be made on the grounds that Plaintiffs’ Amended Complaint fails to plead facts sufficient to state any claim for relief. Additionally, Plaintiff A.B.O. Comix lacks standing to pursue its claims and Plaintiff Zachary Greenberg’s and Plaintiff Wumi Oladipo’s claims are moot.

This Motion is based on this Notice of Motion and Motion, Defendants’ accompanying memoranda in support thereof, including all attachments, all other pleadings and papers on file in this action, and such other matters as may be presented by counsel at the hearing on this motion.

DATED: September 8, 2023

1 I. INTRODUCTION

2 The California and federal Constitutions both recognize that “imprisonment carries with it 3 the circumscription or loss of many significant rights.” (People v. Johnson (2006) 139 Cal.App.4th 4 1135, 1168.) This is because jails, “by definition, are places of involuntary confinement of persons 5 who have demonstrated proclivity for antisocial criminal, and often violent, conduct.” 6 (Sacramento Cnty. Deputy Sheriff’s Ass’n v. Cnty. of Sacramento (1996) 51 Cal.App.4th 1468, 7 1480 [“Sacramento”].) Inside “this volatile ‘community,’ prison administrators are to take all 8 necessary steps to ensure the safety of ... prison staffs” as well as “the inmates themselves.” (Id.)

9 Plaintiffs’ suit initially raised both California and federal claims, challenging San Mateo 10 County’s (the “County”) policy of digitizing inmate mail and providing copies on tablets and 11 kiosks using Smart Communication’s (“Smart”) services. The County implemented this policy, 12 inter alia, to prevent exposure to fentanyl and other drugs, which are easily introduced into jails by 13 mail “through paper that ha[s] been soaked, sprayed or otherwise treated with illicit substances 14 before being mailed to prisoners.” (See Human Rights Def. Center v. Bd. of Cnty. Com’rs (D.N.H.
15 Feb. 2, 2023) __ F.Supp.3d __, 2023 WL 1473863, at *1 [“HRDC”].)

16 Plaintiffs’ original Complaint (“OC”) claimed the policy “violates the First Amendment” 17 because “it is not rationally related to any legitimate penological goals” and “leaves no adequate 18 alternatives to communication” and “violates the Fourth Amendment because it constitutes an 19 unreasonable search and seizure.” (OC ¶¶ 88, 91.) After Defendants removed the action to federal 20 court, Plaintiffs filed an Amended Complaint (“AC”), which omitted their federal claims. The AC 21 claims the policy “serves no legitimate penological purpose,”¹ but “no longer raises claims under 22 federal law” and instead brings identical claims “under Article I, [§] 2 and Article I, [§] 13 of the 23 California Constitution.”² Because Plaintiffs purportedly abandoned their First and Fourth 24 Amendment claims, the federal court remanded the case back to this Court.

25 Plaintiffs’ jurisdictional gymnastics are a cynical attempt to evade well-settled 26 constitutional principles recognized by Crime Justice & Am. v. Honea (9th Cir. 2017) 876 F.3d

27
28 ¹ Request for Judicial Notice (“RJN”), Ex. A ¶ 2. Exhibit A is hereinafter referred to as “AC.”
² RJN, Ex. E at 3:13-14, 2:15-17.

1 966. Honea upheld Butte County’s policy banning the delivery of certain types of inmate mail due
2 to safety concerns. (Id. at 969.) As a substitute, the jail digitized the banned mail and installed
3 “electronic kiosks” for inmates “to access electronic versions” of it. (Id. at 971.) The plaintiff 4 argued this policy was an unlawful “suppression of expression” and served no “legitimate 5 penological interests.” (Id. at 972-973.) Honea disagreed. Under the First Amendment, 6 “[r]egulations regarding the review of [prisoner’s] mail are evaluated under the ... test set forth in 7 Turner v. Safley [(1987)] 482 U.S. 78.” (Reynolds v. Rios (E.D. Cal. Feb. 10, 2011) 2011 WL
8 617424, at *2.) Applying Turner’s test, Honea held Butte County’s policy was “reasonably related 9 to a legitimate penological objective” and that providing “kiosks” for review of “mail to inmates” 10 is “an adequate substitute for regular distribution of paper copies.” (876 F.3d at 970, 976, 978.)

11 Seeking to sidestep Honea’s hornbook holdings, the AC purports to assert “novel 12 California constitutional claims” that Plaintiffs represent are governed by substantively different 13 rules than the federal claims addressed in Honea because inmate rights under “the state 14 constitution’s free speech and privacy guarantees are ... broader than ... their federal analogs.” 15 (RJN, Ex. F at 2:2-3, 3:24-25.) Not so. California has codified prisoners’ civil rights in Penal Code 16 § 2600, which provides that the incarcerated may be “deprived of rights” if such deprivation “is 17 reasonably related to legitimate penological interests.” This law is “designed to conform 18 California law to the [U.S. Supreme Court’s] decision in Turner.” (Cnty. of Nev. v. Super. Ct.
19 (2015) 236 Cal.App.4th 1001, 1009 fn. 2.) Consequently, all prisoner free-speech claims under 20 California law are “governed by the high court’s test in Turner.” (Thompson v. Dep’t of Corr.
21 (2001) 25 Cal.4th 117, 130.) Therefore, Honea likewise dooms Plaintiffs’ state-law claims. (See 22 876 F.3d at 971-973.) Plaintiffs’ search-and-seizure claims also fail because, under California law, 23 “a person incarcerated in a jail or prison possesses no justifiable expectation of privacy” 24 whatsoever. (People v. Loyd (2002) 27 Cal.4th 997, 1001.)

25 In addition to these fatal defects, Plaintiffs’ claims must be dismissed for four other 26 independent reasons. First, lead-Plaintiff A.B.O. Comix (“A.B.O.”) does not possess associational 27 standing to bring this suit because, among other things, it must plead facts showing that it is a 28 properly formed organization “operating under the laws of California” or another jurisdiction.

1 (Creed-21 v. City of Wildomar (2017) 18 Cal.App.5th 690, 692.) The AC pleads only that A.B.O.
2 “is a collective of artists.” (AC ¶ 5.) A “collective” is not a properly formed organization.

3 Second, Plaintiff Zachary Greenberg’s claims are moot because he is no longer 4 incarcerated in the County’s jails. (AC ¶ 21.) This is so because he “[i]s no longer under the 5 physical control of [the County], and the challenged conduct no longer applie[s] to [him].” (See 6 Giraldo v. Dep’t of Corr. & Rehab. (2008) 168 Cal.App.4th 231, 257.)

7 Third, the claims of Plaintiff Wumi Oladipo, Mr. Greenberg’s purported “significant 8 other,” likewise are moot. (See AC ¶ 86.) Even if her relationship with Mr. Greenberg conferred 9 standing while he was incarcerated in the County’s jails, her claims are now moot because “the 10 challenged conduct no longer applie[s] to [either of them].” (Giraldo, 168 Cal.App.4th at 257.)

11 Finally, prisoners “must exhaust available administrative remedies before filing a lawsuit.” 12 (Parthemore v. Col (2013) 221 Cal.App.4th 1372, 1380.) And “it is [the plaintiffs’] burden to 13 plead and establish as a part of their case in chief that they exhausted their administrative remedy.” 14 (Westinghouse Elec. Corp. v. Cnty. of Los Angeles (1974) 42 Cal.App.3d 32, 37.) Here, the 15 County has established a grievance procedure that enables “inmate[s] [to] file a grievance 16 relating to ... mail use procedures.” (RJN, Ex. B at § 612.2.) The AC does not plead that Plaintiffs 17 have exhausted their remedies under that policy. Thus, their claims fail as a matter of law.

18 II. STATEMENT OF FACTS ALLEGED BY PLAINTIFFS

19 “This case concerns [the] County’s use of [Smart’s] MailGuard service, which the County 20 uses to eliminate physical mail.” (AC ¶ 26.) Before 2021, non-legal inmate mail was “inspect[ed]” 21 by staff and if “approved, it was delivered” to the inmate.” (Id. ¶ 31.) In 2021, the County began 22 “digitizing incoming mail using [Smart’s MailGuard] services.” (Id. ¶ 32.) MailGuard “redirects 23 physical mail” to Smart’s facility where it “scan[s] and upload[s] digital copies of the mail into a 24 proprietary database.” (Id. ¶ 26.) Jail staff then “review mail” and “[i]f approved, a digital copy of 25 the mail may be accessed by its recipient ... via tablets or kiosks.” (Id.) In 2021, “the County’s 26 then-Sheriff ... announced that the County’s mail policy [is] meant to prioritize ... safety” due to 27 “concerns about fentanyl exposures.” (Id. ¶ 9.) The policy aims to “keep everyone safe since there 28 ha[ve] been some concerns regarding fentanyl exposures with the old mail system.” (Id. ¶ 49.)

1 III. ANALYSIS

2 A. Plaintiffs’ Claims Should Be Dismissed Because They Are Not Justiciable

3 1. Lead Plaintiff A.B.O. Lacks Associational Standing

4 “Standing is a threshold issue necessary to maintain a cause of action, and the burden to 5 allege and establish standing lies with the plaintiff.” (People ex rel. Becerra v. Super. Ct. (2018) 6 29 Cal.App.5th 486, 495.) Because “[t]he rendering of advisory opinions” falls outside the 7 constitutional jurisdiction of California’s courts, the absence of standing is an incurable
8 “jurisdiction defect.” (Id. at 497.) Thus, “[s]tanding goes to the existence of a cause of action.”
9 (Apt. Ass’n of Los Angeles Cnty, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (2006) 136 Cal.App.4th 119, 128.)

10 In limited circumstances, “an incorporated association” that is “organized in part to 11 represent [its members] in matters affecting [them],” may be vested with standing to seek 12 “injunctive relief, to restrain alleged violations of public law which threaten injury to [its] 13 members.” (Cal. Dental Ass’n v. Cal. Dental Hygienists’ Ass’n (1990) 222 Cal.App.3d 49, 61, 14 emphasis added.) But to qualify as an incorporated association, a plaintiff seeking to invoke 15 associational standing must plead facts showing it is properly “formed and operating under the 16 laws of California” or another jurisdiction. (Creed-21, 18 Cal.App.5th at 692.) It must be “a 17 properly formed organization with the corporate status and the members necessary to even attempt 18 to claim associational standing.” (Made in the USA Found. v. GMC (D.D.C. Mar. 31, 2005) 2005 19 WL 3676030, at *2.) “[P]roperly formed” organizations recognized by our law include 20 corporations, partnerships, and LLCs. (U.S. v. Kumar (N.D. Cal. Dec. 20, 2016) 2016 WL 21 7369863, at *8.) But the AC pleads only that A.B.O. “is a collective of artists.” (AC ¶ 5.) A 22 “collective” is not a “properly formed organization.” Indeed, the California Secretary of State has 23 no record of any corporation, LLC, or limited partnership of record called “A.B.O. Comix” or 24 “ABO Comix” that is authorized to do business in the State of California. (See RJN Exs. C-D.)

25 Even if A.B.O. could overcome this inadequacy, it still has not shown it was “organized” 26 to “represent” any members incarcerated in the County’s jails. (See Cal. Dental Ass’n, 222 27 Cal.App.3d at 61.) To do so, it must prove, inter alia, that it has suffered “a drain on its resources 28 from both a diversion of its resources and frustration of its mission which is sufficient to establish

1 that it is an aggrieved party.” (Urban Habitat Program v. City of Pleasanton (2008) 164
2 Cal.App.4th 1561, 1581.) Here, A.B.O. made no factual allegations that it was forced to divert 3 resources to help its “members” because of the County’s actions.

4 Adopting the U.S. Supreme Court’s seminal decision on associational standing in Hunt v.
5 Wash. State Apple Advert. Com’n (1977) 432 U.S. 333, California courts recognize that “an 6 association has standing to sue when ‘its members, or any one of them, are suffering immediate or 7 threatened injury as a result of the challenged action of the sort that would make out a justiciable 8 case had the members themselves brought suit.’” (Prop. Owners of Whispering Palms, Inc. v.
9 Newport Pac., Inc. (2005) 132 Cal.App.4th 666, 673 quoting Hunt, 432 U.S. at 343.) While Hunt 10 is predicated on the U.S. Constitution, “California courts have applied the doctrine, including the 11 [so-called] three Hunt requirements.” (United Farmers Agents Ass’n, Inc. v. Farmers Grp, Inc.
12 (2019) 32 Cal.App.5th 478, 488.) These requirements dictate an association must plead and prove:

13 (a) its members would otherwise have standing to sue in their own 14 right;

15 (b) the interests it seeks to protect are germane to [its] purpose; and 16 (c) neither the claim asserted nor the relief requested requires the 17 participation of individual members in the lawsuit.

18 (Hunt, 432 U.S. at 343.)

19 To meet the first prong, A.B.O. must “prove [its] members are ‘beneficially interested’ in 20 the outcome of [the] proceedings.” (San Francisco Apt. Ass’n v. City & Cnty. of San Francisco 21 (2016) 3 Cal.App.5th 463, 472.) This “beneficial interest” must be both “direct and substantial.” 22 (Friends of Oceano Dunes, Inc. v. San Luis Obispo Cnty. Air Poll. Control Dist. (2015) 235 23 Cal.App.4th 957, 962.) But A.B.O. makes no allegations showing persons it purports to represent 24 are actually its “members.” An organization’s failure to demonstrate it has interested “members” is 25 fatal to its standing. (San Diegans for Open Gov’t v. Fonseca (2021) 64 Cal.App.5th 426, 434.)
26 Thus, an organization must provide “the names of [its] members” who have been harmed by the 27 challenged conduct. (Id.) And merely alleging that the conduct affected “prospective” members is 28 insufficient to establish associational standing. (Indep. Roofing Contractors v. Cal. Apprenticeship Council (2003) 114 Cal.App.4th 1330, 1341, emphasis in original.)

1 A.B.O. characterizes itself as “a collective of artists that works to amplify the voices of 2 incarcerated LGBTQ people through artistic expression....” (AC ¶ 59.) It alleges it has “at least 3 one member incarcerated in Maple Street Correctional Center with whom [A.B.O.’s] staff has 4 corresponded in the last year.” (Id.) But it does not identify this member or explain any specific 5 harm that person suffered. It does not even allege that this purported member uses the mail or that 6 the policy has deterred the member from doing so. The AC merely conclusorily posits that the 7 mail policy has “deterred [unidentified] members of the collective from expressing themselves as 8 openly.” (Id. ¶ 62.) It failed to identify specific members that have been impacted by the mail 9 policy as well as the specific harms suffered. A.B.O. has also not shown that it is “sufficiently 10 identified with and subject to the influence” of the individuals it seeks to represent. It has not 11 shown that those individuals elect, serve, or finance its activities. None of the inmate-Plaintiffs 12 allege they are A.B.O. members or that A.B.O. even represents their interests. Likewise, the AC 13 does not allege what involvement, if any, the other Plaintiffs have with A.B.O. Nor does it provide 14 any details regarding A.B.O.’s organizational structure or funding. Thus, A.B.O. lacks standing.

15 2. Plaintiffs Zachary Greenberg’s and Wumi Oladipo’s Claims Are Moot

16 “Plaintiff Zachary Greenberg is currently incarcerated at Folsom State Prison.” (AC ¶ 21.)
17 He “[i]s no longer under the physical control of [the County], and the challenged conduct no 18 longer applie[s] to h[im].” (Giraldo, 168 Cal.App.4th at 257.) Thus, “any injunction or declaratory 19 judgment would not impact [him].” (Id.) As such, his claims are not justiciable because a 20 prisoner’s transfer or release from a jail “while his claims are pending” generally “moot[s] any 21 claims for injunctive relief relating to the [jail’s] policies.” (Id. at 259, citation omitted.) This is 22 because injunctive relief “lies only to prevent threatened injury and has no application to wrongs 23 that have been completed.... It should neither serve as punishment for past acts, nor be exercised 24 in the absence of any evidence establishing the reasonable probability the acts will be repeated in 25 the future.” (Scripps Health v. Marin (1999) 72 Cal.App.4th 324, 332.)

26 Plaintiff Wumi Oladipo’s claims are also moot for the same reasons. Ms. Oladipo 27 purportedly is Mr. Greenberg’s “significant other.” (AC ¶ 86.) Assuming that her relationship with 28 Mr. Greenberg conferred standing to challenge the mail policy while he was in the County’s jails,

1 “the challenged conduct no longer applie[s] to [either of them].” (Giraldo, 168 Cal.App.4th at 2 257.) Thus, any claims that Mr. Greenberg and Ms. Oladipo may have had are now moot.

3 3. Plaintiffs Failed to Exhaust Their Administrative Remedies

4 To bring a claim under California law regarding the terms of confinement, a prisoner 5 “must exhaust available administrative remedies before filing a lawsuit.” (Parthemore, 221 6 Cal.App.4th at 1380.) This rule applies “even when the grievances involve an alleged 7 constitutional violation.” (In re Serna (1978) 76 Cal.App.3d 1010, 1014.) In addition, “where 8 remedy by appeal is available” under a grievance policy, the plaintiff must also exhaust all 9 avenues of appeal under the policy “before redress may be had in the courts.” (Blake v. PUC of 10 City & Cnty. of San Francisco (1953) 120 Cal.App.2d 671, 673.)

11 “[F]ailure to exhaust administrative remedies” is not merely “an affirmative defense.”
12 (Westinghouse, 42 Cal.App.3d at 37.) When a plaintiff sues a state agency that provides a 13 grievance procedure, exhaustion of all avenues of review under that procedure is an element of the 14 plaintiff’s case in chief. (Id.) In such cases, “it is [the plaintiffs’] burden to plead and establish as a 15 part of their case in chief that they exhausted their administrative remedy” in order to state a prima 16 facie case. (Id.) “Under California law, the requirement of exhaustion of administrative remedies 17 is a jurisdictional prerequisite to resort to the courts.” (Phillips-Kerley v. City of Fresno (E.D. Cal.
18 Oct. 19, 2018) 2018 WL 5255224, at *4.) Thus, a prisoner’s “failure to exhaust administrative 19 remedies is a proper basis for demurrer.” (Parthemore, 221 Cal.App.4th at 1379.)

20 Jails must “develop written policies and procedures whereby all incarcerated persons have 21 the opportunity and ability to submit and appeal grievances relating to any conditions of 22 confinement, including but not limited to: .. mail ... procedures” (15 C.C.R. § 1073.) Pursuant 23 to this law, the County established a procedure enabling “any inmate [to] file a grievance relating 24 to conditions of confinement,” including “mail use procedures.” (RJN Ex. B at § 612.2.) To do so, 25 an inmate must “complete[] [an] inmate grievance form” which must “be filed ... within 14 days of 26 the complaint.” (Id. at § 612.3, § 612.3.2.) The policy further provides: “Inmates may appeal the 27 finding of a grievance to the Division Commander as the final level of appeal within five days of 28 receiving the findings of the original grievance.” (Id. at § 612.3.3.)

1 The AC does not plead that Plaintiffs exhausted their rights under the grievance procedure.
2 Thus, Plaintiffs have not satisfied their “burden to plead and establish as a part of their case in 3 chief that they exhausted their administrative remedy.” (Westinghouse, 42 Cal.App.3d at 37.)

4 B. Plaintiffs’ Claims Fail on the Merits as a Matter of Law

5 1. Plaintiffs’ Search-and-Seizure Claim Is Patently Frivolous

6 Plaintiffs dedicate nearly a third of their AC—some 28 of their 90 paragraphs—to 7 asserting the County’s mail policy is an “invasion of privacy” and thus “constitutes an 8 unreasonable search and seizure of correspondence and other information in which Plaintiffs and 9 others maintain a reasonable expectation of privacy” in violation of Article I, § 13 of the 10 California Constitution. (AC ¶¶ 48, 90; accord e.g., id. ¶¶ 2, 6-9, 12, 29-30, 33, 41, 43-47, 57, 62, 11 64, 68, 72, 75, 79, 81-82, 86-87.) This contention is frivolous.

12 Article I, § 13 is California’s “counterpart to the Fourth Amendment.” (People v. Sabo 13 (1986) 185 Cal.App.3d 845, 448 fn.1.) Like the Fourth Amendment, a claim under Article I, § 13 14 turns on whether the person invoking it had “a reasonable expectation of privacy.” (People v.
15 Abbot (1984) 162 Cal.App.3d 635, 639.) “Determining whether an expectation of privacy is ...
16 ‘reasonable’ necessarily entails a balancing of interests. The two interests here are the interest of 17 society in the security of its penal institutions and the interest of the prisoner in privacy.” 18 (Sacramento, 51 Cal.App.4th at 1480, 1485.) In jails, the law “strike[s] [that] balance in favor of 19 institutional security,” as security “is central to all other corrections goals.” (Id. at 1480.) 20 California applies a bright-line rule: “a person incarcerated in a jail or prison possesses no 21 justifiable expectation of privacy.” (Loyd, 27 Cal.4th at 1001.) This is because the “lack of privacy 22 is a necessary adjunct to ... imprisonment.” (Id.) “While the deprivation of a prisoner’s rights ...
23 requires penological objectives, the legitimacy of jailhouse monitoring of inmate 24 [communications] is based on precisely these objectives.” (Id. at 1004.) Thus, “California law ...
25 permits law enforcement officers to monitor ... unprivileged [inmate] communications”—even 26 when such “surveillance” is unrelated “to the maintenance of institutional security” and is for the 27 sole purpose of “gather[ing] evidence of crime.” (Id. at 1003-1004, 1010.)

28 This rule applies to non-legal inmate mail. In People v. Garvey, a prisoner “in jail awaiting

1 trial” for attacking a man in a bar “wrote to a friend” admitting that he “kick[ed] [the victim] in the 2 head.” ((1979) 99 Cal.App.3d 320, 322.) “The jailer monitoring outgoing mail copied [the 3 prisoner’s] letter” and provided it to the prosecutor. (Id.) The letter was admitted against the 4 prisoner at trial. (Id.) The court in Garvey held that the jailers’ surveillance of the letter did not 5 violate any of the prisoner’s rights. (Id.) This is because “[e]xcept where the communication is a 6 confidential one addressed to an attorney, court, or public official, a prisoner has no expectation 7 of privacy with respect to letters posted by him.” (Id. at 323, emphasis added.) So too here.

8 2. Plaintiffs’ Free-Speech Claim Fails as a Matter of Law

9 Plaintiffs claim the mail policy “violates Article I, [§] 2 of the California Constitution” by 10 inhibiting inmates’ freedom “to express themselves” and “is not rationally related to any 11 legitimate penological goals.” (AC ¶¶ 2, 89.) They claim this count “raises novel claims under 12 [California law] regarding the constitutionality of the County’s decision to [digitize] non-legal 13 physical mail”³ and that these claims are governed by substantively different rules than analogous 14 claims under the First Amendment because inmate rights under “the state constitution’s free 15 speech ... guarantees are ... broader than ... their federal analogs.”⁴ Not so.

16 Article I, § 2 “is equivalent to the First Amendment’s free speech clause.” (Gerawan 17 Farming Inc. v. Lyons (2000) 24 Cal.4th 468, 512.) Under the First Amendment, “[r]egulations 18 regarding the review of [prisoner’s] incoming mail are evaluated under the ... test set forth in 19 Turner v. Safley.” (Reynolds, 2011 WL 617424, at *2.) California codified prisoners’ 20 constitutional and statutory civil rights in Penal Code § 2600, which provides that during 21 “confinement” inmates may be “deprived of rights” if such deprivation “is reasonably related to 22 legitimate penological interests.” Section 2600 is “designed to conform California law to the 23 decision in Turner.” (Cnty. of Nev., 236 Cal.App.4th at 1009, fn. 2.) Plaintiffs claim § 2600 “does 24 not ... interpret the state constitution’s independent guarantee of rights.” (RJN, Ex. F at 4:16-19.) 25 Not so. The Supreme Court held that § 2600 embodies the sum total of an inmate’s “statutory as 26 well as constitutional rights” under California law. (In re Qawi (2004) 32 Cal.4th 1, 21, emphasis

27
28 ³ RJN, Ex. E at 5:4-5, 5:11-12.

⁴ RJN, Ex. F at 3:24-25.

1 added.) Thus, all inmate free-speech claims under California law are “governed by the high 2 court’s test in Turner.” (Thompson (2001) 25 Cal.4th at 130.) This includes claims under the 3 “California constitution.” (Snow v. Woodford (2005) 128 Cal.App.4th 383, 389, 390 fn. 3.)

4 While California “sometimes provide[s] broader protection” than the U.S. Constitution, 5 “cogent reasons must exist before a state court in construing a provision of the state Constitution 6 will depart from the construction placed by the [U.S.] Supreme Court ... on a similar provision in 7 the federal Constitution.” (Sacramento, 51 Cal.App.4th at 1485-1486.) Such reasons plainly do not 8 exist here because our Supreme Court held that all prisoner civil rights claims under California 9 law are “governed by the high court’s test in Turner.” (Thompson, 25 Cal.4th at 130.)

10 a. The Turner Test

11 Turner is “a rational-basis test.” (Evans v. Skolnik (9th Cir. 2021) 997 F.3d 1060, 1071, fn.
12 8.) Under it, a “regulation is valid if it is reasonably related to legitimate penological interests.” 13 (Turner, 482 U.S. at 89.) It requires courts to evaluate regulations under four factors:

- 14 (1) whether there is a valid, rational connection between the 15 [challenged] policy and the legitimate governmental interest put 16 forward to justify it;
- 17 (2) whether there are alternative means of exercising the right;
- 18 (3) whether accommodating the asserted right will have an impact 19 on guards, other inmates and allocation of prison resources; and
- (4) whether the policy is an “exaggerated response” to the prison’s concerns.

20 (In re Furnace (2010) 185 Cal.App.4th 649, 664.)

21 “California cases” applying Turner “have ... stressed the need for courts to defer to prison 22 authorities in running the prison system.” (In re Jenkins (2010) 50 Cal.4th 1167, 1175.) This is 23 mandated by the “separation of powers,” which recognizes “[r]unning a prison is an inordinately 24 difficult undertaking that requires expertise, planning, and the commitment of resources, all of 25 which are particularly within the province of the legislative and executive branches of 26 government.” (Id.) Turner and § 2600 demand that courts show “sensitivity to ‘the delicate 27 balance that administrators must strike between the order and security of the internal prison 28 environment and the legitimate demands of those on the ‘outside’ who seek to enter that

1 environment, in person or through the written word.” (In re Collins (2001) 86 Cal.App.4th 1176, 2 1182.) Courts must acknowledge “certain proposed interactions, though seemingly innocuous to 3 laymen, have potentially significant implications for the order and security of the prison.” (Id.)

4 b. Honea and HRDC Prove the County’s Mail Policy Is Reasonably 5 Related to a Legitimate Penological Interest as a Matter of Law

6 Honea and HRDC establish that the policy satisfies Turner and § 2600 as a matter of law.
7 In HRDC, the court upheld a strikingly similar mail policy implemented by Stratford County, New 8 Hampshire. (See HRDC, 2023 WL 1473863, at *1.) Stratford’s policy “ban[ned] all incoming 9 inmate mail.” (Id.) The jail did this because it was “concerned about the security risk posed by 10 incoming inmate mail” since narcotics, particularly fentanyl, can enter the jail “through paper that 11 ha[s] been soaked, sprayed, or otherwise treated with illicit substances before being mailed to 12 prisoners.” (Id.) “The solution came in the form of electronic tablets.” (Id. at *2.) As here, 13 Stratford began digitizing “incoming (non-legal) mail” and made it available to inmates on 14 “electronic tablets.” (Id. at *1-2.) This satisfied Turner’s rational-basis test because “restricting 15 inmate access to opioids” is a “legitimate penological interest[] under Turner,” and by allowing 16 inmates to send and receive mail digitally using “electronic tablets,” the jail “provide[d] prisoners 17 with alternate ways to exercise the infringed-upon right.” (Id. at *2, *7-8.)

18 Similarly, Honea concerned a Butte County policy “prohibiting delivery of unsolicited 19 commercial mail to inmates.” (876 F.3d at 969.) As a substitute, the jail digitized the banned mail 20 and installed “electronic kiosks” for inmates “to access electronic versions.” (Id. at 971.) The ban 21 was motivated by less serious threats than in HRDC or here. The jail was concerned, inter alia, that 22 inmates may “use paper to cover windows” or “clog toilets.” (Id. at 970.)

23 The plaintiff claimed “the jail’s [mail] ban” infringed inmates’ free-speech rights. (Id. at 24 971.) But, applying the Turner test, the court held Butte’s policy was “reasonably related to a 25 legitimate penological objective” and providing “kiosks” for review of “mail to inmates” is “an 26 adequate substitute for regular distribution of paper copies.” (Id. at 970, 976, 978.) HRDC and 27 Honea show that the policy at issue here satisfies Turner and § 2600 as a matter of law.

c. The Policy Satisfies All the Turner Factors as a Matter of Law

(i) The Policy Furthers Legitimate State Objectives

The first Turner factor asks whether “the regulation [is] reasonably related to legitimate security interests.” (Turner, 482 U.S. at 91.) In determining whether an objective is legitimate, courts must “[a]cknowledge[] the expertise of prison officials.” (Collins, 86 Cal.App.4th at 1182.) This is because “courts are ill equipped to deal with the complex and difficult problems of prison administration” and based on their “expertise,” jail officials may reasonably conclude that “certain proposed interactions, though seemingly innocuous to laymen, have potentially significant implications for the order and security of the prison.” (Id.) Plaintiffs allege the County “change[d] ... the way” inmates “receive mail to prioritize the safety and security of those in [its] correctional facilities.” (AC ¶ 49.) The County initiated the policy “over concerns about fentanyl exposures.” (Id. ¶ 9.) Its aim was “to help keep everyone safe since there ha[ve] been some concerns regarding fentanyl exposures with the old mail system [the jail was] using.” (Id. ¶ 49.)

This objective is both “neutral” and “legitimate.” It is “neutral” because it applies “without regard to the content of the expression.” (See Turner, 482 U.S. at 90.) And “restricting inmate access to opioids like ... fentanyl in particular are legitimate penological interests.” (HRDC, 2023 WL 1473863, at *7.) California courts agree mitigating the introduction of “drugs into ... prison” is a legitimate penological interest. (In re Espinoza (2011) 192 Cal.App.4th 97, 108.)

The policy is “rationally related” to the objective of protecting against “fentanyl exposures.” In light of “the significant deference granted to corrections officials,” courts cannot weigh evidence in determining whether the rational-relationship requirement is met. (Id. at 6.) A policy only needs to have “a logical connection to” a “legitimate government interest[.]” (Friend v. Kolodziejczak (9th Cir. 1991) 923 F.2d 126, 127.) It “makes logical sense” that “bann[ing] ... inmate mail” will reduce “inmate access to opioids.” (HRDC, 2023 WL 1473863, at *2, *7-8.) Fentanyl is introduced into jails “through paper that ha[s] been soaked, sprayed or otherwise treated with illicit substances before being mailed.” (Id. at *1.) Thus, Turner’s first factor is met.

(ii) The Policy Provides Alternative Means to Use the Mail

Turner’s second “factor asks whether there are alternative means that remain open to ...

1 inmates.” (Honea, 876 F.3d at 975-976.) When an alternative is provided, courts must “be 2 particularly conscious of the measure of judicial deference owed to corrections officials.” (Turner, 3 482 U.S. at 90.) The alternative “need not be ideal”—it “need only be available.” (Overton v.
4 Bazzetta (2003) 539 U.S. 126, 135.) “Turner does not require that the alternative avenue provide 5 exactly the same level of communication as the plaintiff’s preferred method, only that other means 6 of expression be available.” (Honea, 876 F.3d at 976.) Plaintiffs claim the policy “leaves no 7 adequate alternatives to communication via physical mail.” (AC ¶ 89.) Not so. The County 8 “digitiz[es] incoming mail” and provides copies to prisoners “via tablets or kiosks.” (Id. ¶¶ 26, 9 32.) Honea held providing “kiosks” alone is “an adequate substitute for regular distribution of 10 paper copies.” (876 F.3d at 970, 976.) HRDC held making digitized copies “available on ...
11 electronic tablet[s]” alone “more than satisfie[s] [Turner’s] second prong.” (2023 WL 1473863, at 12 *8.) Thus, Turner’s second prong is satisfied here as a matter of law.

13 (iii) An Accommodation Would Endanger Inmates and Staff

14 Turner’s third “factor requires [courts] to consider the impact accommodation of the 15 asserted constitutional right will have on guards and other inmates, and on the allocation of prison 16 resources generally.” (Honea, 876 F.3d at 976.) A policy passes this test when accommodating the 17 inmate would come “at a cost of increased risk of danger to the inmate population as well as the 18 staff.” (Chau v. Young (N.D. Cal. Aug. 20, 2014) 2014 WL 4100635, at *5.) A policy likewise 19 satisfies this test if an accommodation would require “that additional time and resulting expense 20 would ... have to be spent searching ... for contraband” because the materials requested by the 21 inmate are “serviceable for smuggling ... drugs” or other “contraband into [the] institution” and are 22 “difficult to search effectively.” (Antonetti v. McDaniels (D. Nev. Jan. 25, 2021) 2021 WL 23 624241, at *13.) The County’s mail policy satisfies both these criteria.

24 Fentanyl “pose[s] a risk to the health, safety, and security of the Jail’s prisoners and staff.”
25 (HRDC, 2023 WL 1473863, at *1.) As Judge Breyer found: “Fentanyl is deadly. While heroin 26 generally contains only 5%-15% active drug, fentanyl is often 100% pure.” (City & Cnty. of San 27 Francisco v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. (N.D. Cal. 2022) 620 F.Supp.3d 936, 946.) It is “100 times 28 more potent than morphine and as much as 50 times more potent than heroin.” (Id.) “A dash of 1 fentanyl—not much larger than a few grains of sand—can be fatal.” (Id.) An accommodation

2 would increase the risk of fentanyl entering the jail. It also would also raise the risks faced by jail 3 staff. Plaintiffs claim “[o]n information and belief” that “incidental fentanyl exposure does not 4 pose a health risk.” (AC ¶ 9.) Not so. Material containing “suspected fentanyl” must be handled 5 with caution “because death can result if just a small amount makes contact with a person’s skin.”
6 (U.S. v. Joseph (11th Cir. 2020) 978 F.3d 1251, 1260.)

7 Accommodating Plaintiffs would also require the jail “to allocate more time, money, and 8 personnel” to detecting fentanyl. (HRDC, 2023 WL 1473863, at *8.) Visually “inspecting 9 incoming mail” for fentanyl is ineffective because “methods for disguising narcotic-treated paper 10 [have] grown increasingly sophisticated and visual inspection often fail[s].” (Id. at *1.) And 11 buying machines “to scan incoming mail for narcotics” is extremely expensive and such machines 12 “[can]not detect fentanyl.” (Id.) Thus, Turner’s third factor is satisfied as a matter of law.

13 (iv) The Policy Is Not an Exaggerated Response

14 Turner’s final factor asks “whether the regulation is an exaggerated response to [the jail’s] 15 concerns.” (Snow, 128 Cal.App.4th at 393.) The AC claims “mail is not a significant source of 16 fentanyl or other drugs in [the] County’s jails.” (AC ¶¶ 9, 50.) This allegation is irrelevant. Turner 17 does not require officials “to wait until there is a breach of security ... in order to take preventative 18 measures.” (Loehr v. Nev. (D. Nev. Dec. 5, 2005) 2005 WL 8161739, at *9.) It empowers jails “to 19 anticipate security problems and to adopt innovative solutions.” (Thompson, 25 Cal.4th at 134.) 20 “Turner does not require the Jail to prove prior instances of narcotics introduction” through the 21 mail “before enacting a policy to prevent such an eventuality.” (HRDC, 2023 WL 1473863, at *8.)

22 “The opioid crisis has infiltrated communities” nationwide, including the Bay Area. (City 23 & Cnty. of San Francisco, v. Purdue Pharma L.P. (N.D. Cal. 2020) 491 F.Supp.3d 610, 629.) And 24 “it is common knowledge that fentanyl is particularly deadly.” (Commonwealth v. Burton (Pa.
25 Sup. Ct. 2020) 234 A.3d 824, 833.) Thus, courts take “judicial notice that heroin/fentanyl 26 addiction in this country has reached crisis levels and that Fentanyl is an especially addicting, 27 dangerous, and unpredictable opiate.” (U.S. v. Lebron (N.D. Ohio 2020) 492 F.Supp.3d 737, 740.)
28 Indeed, Governor Newsom, exercising his powers as the State’s Commander-in-Chief, recently

1 deployed the National Guard “to combat fentanyl trafficking in San Francisco.”⁵ Speaker-of-the-2 House-Emerita Pelosi also asked the Justice Department to deploy “enhanced federal resources” to 3 the Bay Area “to combat fentanyl trafficking” because the opioid crisis’s effects are so grave that 4 “local ... law enforcement” are insufficient, necessitating a “whole of government approach.”⁶ 5 Yet, despite these efforts “[m]ore people died from accidental fentanyl overdoses in San Francisco 6 in July [2023] than almost any other month since the city began releasing overdose death data.”⁷

7 Jails are not immune. “Not only has the opioid crisis impacted [Bay Area] streets, but [its] 8 jails are seeing an influx of opioid contraband.” (Purdue, 491 F.Supp.3d at 629.) The “majority of 9 incarcerated Americans have substance use disorder, many of them with opioid addiction” that is 10 “complicated to manage in the age of ... fentanyl.”⁸ In 2019, California inmates suffered “the 11 highest overdose mortality rate” of any incarcerated population in the U.S.⁹ These stark facts 12 demonstrate that it was proper for the County “to anticipate security problems” presented by 13 fentanyl “and to adopt innovative solutions” before tragedy strikes. (See Thompson, 25 Cal.4th at 14 134.) Thus, the policy satisfies Turner’s final factor. Because “all four Turner factors favor 15 [Defendants]” as a matter of law, § 2600 dictates that Plaintiffs “cannot prevail” on their free 16 speech claim and it must “be dismissed for failure to state a claim upon which relief may be 17 granted.” (See Fields v. Paramo (E.D. Cal. Sept. 24, 2019) 2019 WL 4640502, at *6.)

18 IV. CONCLUSION

19 For the foregoing reasons, the Court should grant Defendants’ Motion.
