

1 Marcia Hofmann (SBN 250087)
marcia@eff.org
2 ELECTRONIC FRONTIER FOUNDATION
454 Shotwell Street
3 San Francisco, CA 94110
Telephone: (415) 436-9333
4 Facsimile: (415) 436-9993

5 David L. Sobel (pro hac vice)
sobel@eff.org
6 ELECTRONIC FRONTIER FOUNDATION
1875 Connecticut Ave. NW
7 Suite 650
Washington, DC 20009
8 Telephone: (202) 797-9009 x104
Facsimile: (202) 707-9066

9 Attorneys for Plaintiff
10 ELECTRONIC FRONTIER FOUNDATION

11
12 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
13 FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
14 SAN FRANCISCO DIVISION

15 ELECTRONIC FRONTIER FOUNDATION, ) NO. 3:08-1023 JSW
16 Plaintiff, )
17 v. ) REPLY IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR 18 OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR OF NATIONAL ) A PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION 19 INTELLIGENCE )
20 and )
21 DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE, )
22 )
23 Defendants. )
24 _____

Judge: The Hon. Jeffrey S. White
Date: April 4, 2008
Time: 9:00 a.m.
Courtroom: Courtroom 2, 17th Floor

25
26
27
28

1 SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT

2 Defendants' position that Plaintiff's motion for a preliminary injunction should be denied
3 has no basis in the Freedom of Information Act or case law. First, Defendants incorrectly claim that 4 motions for preliminary relief are generally improper in FOIA cases. In fact, federal courts —
5 including this one — have long entertained and granted well-founded requests for preliminary 6 relief in FOIA cases. See, e.g., Elec. Frontier Foundation v. Office of the Director of National 7 Intelligence, No. 07-5278 SI, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 89585, at *11 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 27, 2007). The 8 government also erroneously claims that the FOIA "does not require agencies to process expedited
9 requests within a specific time limit." The statute plainly sets forth a generally applicable 20-day
10 processing time limit in 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(6)(A)(i), and requires that requests given expedited 11 treatment be processed "as soon as practicable" in 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(6)(E)(iii). The agency has 12 simply failed to show that exceptional circumstances exist in this case to justify additional time.
13 See, e.g., Electronic Privacy Information Center v. Dep't of Justice, 416 F. Supp. 2d 30, 38-39
14 (D.D.C. 2006). Furthermore, the government is incorrect that the ongoing congressional debate
15 concerning federal surveillance law is an insufficient basis for establishing that irreparable harm
16 would result from further delay. This Court and others have held repeatedly that pending
17 legislation related to the subject of a FOIA request is sufficient to constitute irreparable injury. See,
18 e.g., Elec. Frontier Foundation v. Office of the Director of National Intelligence, No. 07-5278 SI, 19 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 89585, at **19-20; Gerstein v. CIA, No. C-06-4643 MMC, 2006 U.S. Dist.
20 LEXIS 89847, at *20 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 29, 2006). Finally, the government will not be unduly
21 burdened and the public interest will be served if EFF's motion is granted. The relief that EFF
22 seeks here is nothing more than the FOIA clearly requires. Furthermore, the sooner the agencies
23 process EFF's requests, the more quickly they can turn their attention to other pending requests.
24
25
26
27
28

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19 20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

TABLE OF CONTENTS

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES..... v

INTRODUCTION ..... 1

    I. THE COURTS HAVE HELD TIME AND TIME AGAIN THAT PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS ARE APPROPRIATE IN FOIA CASES..... 1

    II. THE GOVERNMENT’S DELAY IN PROCESSING EFF’S “EXPEDITED” FOIA REQUESTS VIOLATES THE STATUTE ..... 5

    III. EFF WILL SUFFER IRREPARABLE INJURY IN THE ABSENCE OF PRELIMINARY RELIEF ..... 9

    IV. A COURT ORDER SECURING EFF’S RIGHT TO EXPEDITION WILL NOT IMPOSE UNDUE BURDEN ON THE GOVERNMENT AND WILL SERVE THE PUBLIC INTEREST ..... 13

CONCLUSION ..... 13

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases

1

2

3 ACLU v. Dep’t of Defense, 339 F. Supp. 2d 501 (S.D.N.Y. 2004) ..... 2,3

4 ACLU v. Dep’t of Justice, 321 F. Supp. 2d 24 (D.D.C. 2004) ..... 9, 12

5 Aguilera v. FBI, 941 F. Supp. 144 (D.D.C. 1996)..... 2, 3

6 Al-Fayed v. CIA, No. 00-2092 (CKK), 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 21476 (D.D.C. Sept. 20, 2000) .. 3, 4

7 Al-Fayed v. CIA, 254 F.3d 300 (D.C. Cir. 2001) ..... 4

8 Assassination Archives & Research Ctr. v. CIA, No. 88-2600, 988 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18606

9 (D.D.C. Sept. 29, 1988)..... 3, 4

10 Cleaver v. Kelley, 427 F. Supp. 80 (D.D.C. 1976) ..... 1, 2, 3

11 Elec. Frontier Foundation v. Dep’t of Justice, slip op., 06-CV-1773 (RBW) (D.D.C. Sept. 27, 12 2007) ..... 4

13 Elec. Frontier Foundation v. Office of the Director of National Intelligence, No. 07-5278 SI, 2007

14 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 89585 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 27, 2007) .....passim

15 Elec. Privacy Info. Ctr. v. Dep’t of Justice (“EPIC”), 416 F. Supp. 2d 30 (D.D.C. 2006).....passim

16 Exner v. FBI, 542 F.2d 1121 (9th Cir. 1976) ..... 5, 12

17 Fiduccia v. Dep’t of Justice, 185 F.3d 1035 (9th Cir. 1999) ..... 8, 12

18 Gerstein v. CIA, No. C-06-4643 MMC, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 89883 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 29, 2006) 2, 19 6, 9

20 Gerstein v. CIA, No. C-06-4643 MMC, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 89847 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 29, 2006) 9, 21 11, 12

22 Gilmore v. National Sec. Agency, No. C-92-3646 THE, 1993 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7694 (N.D. Cal.

23 May 3, 1993) ..... 5, 8

24 Judicial Watch v. Dep’t of Homeland Security, 514 F. Supp. 2d 7 (D.C.C. 2007) ..... 4

25 Leadership Conference on Civil Rights v. Gonzales, 404 F. Supp. 2d 246 (D.D.C. 2005)..... 9, 12

26 Natural Resources Defense Council v. Department of Energy, 191 F. Supp. 2d 41 (D.D.C. 2002) 12

27 Open America v. Watergate Special Prosecution Task Force, 547 F.2d 605 (D.C. Cir. 1976)..... 5

28 Payne Enterprises v. United States, 837 F.2d 486 (D.C. Cir. 1988) ..... 4

Renegotiation Bd. v. Bannerkraft Clothing Co., 415 U.S. 1 (1974)..... 4

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19 20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

Statutes

5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(6)(A)(i)..... 5, 12
5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(6)(C)(i)..... 5
5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(6)(E)(v)(II) ..... 3

INTRODUCTION

1
2 Plaintiff Electronic Frontier Foundation (“EFF”) initiated this action on February 20, 2008,
3 and moved for entry of a preliminary injunction on February 29, 2008, seeking an order requiring
4 Defendants Office of the Director of National Intelligence (“ODNI”) and Department of Justice
5 (“DOJ”) to disclose information relevant to a highly controversial, time-sensitive congressional 6 debate within ten days.

7 Defendants filed an opposition to the motion on March 18, 2008. The agencies oppose the 8 motion on the grounds that 1) a preliminary injunction is not an appropriate procedural vehicle for 9 the relief EFF seeks; 2) the Freedom of Information Act (“FOIA”) does not mandate any specific 10 time frame for the processing of an “expedited” request; and 3) the public interest will not be 11 served and the agencies will be unduly burdened unless they are permitted to process the 12 documents on their own schedules, without the Court’s intervention. EFF respectfully submits this 13 reply to address those arguments.

I. The Courts Have Held Time and Time Again That Preliminary Injunctions are Appropriate in FOIA Cases

14
15
16 Defendants incorrectly assert that motions for preliminary relief in FOIA cases are 17 “generally inappropriate” and that “[a] number of courts have denied requests for preliminary 18 injunctive relief for claims brought under the FOIA[.]” Defendants’ Opposition to Plaintiff’s
19 Motion for a Preliminary Injunction (“Defs. Opp.”) at 11. To the contrary, federal courts have long 20 entertained and, when appropriate, granted requests for preliminary relief in FOIA cases. In fact, 21 just four months ago this Court ruled that preliminary injunctions may properly be considered in 22 FOIA cases, rejecting the argument the government makes again here. Elec. Frontier Foundation
23 v. Office of the Director of National Intelligence, No. 07-5278 SI, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 89585
24 *11 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 27, 2007).

25
26 Other courts have consistently held likewise. In Cleaver v. Kelley, 427 F. Supp. 80 (D.D.C.
27 1976), the court issued a preliminary injunction requiring, within 21 days, the production of all 28

1 documents responsive to a FOIA request and the filing of an index detailing and justifying any
2 withholdings. The injunction was predicated upon the court’s finding of an “exceptional and urgent
3 need” for disclosure of the requested information. Id. at 81-82. Similarly, in Aguilera v. FBI, 941 F.
4 Supp. 144 (D.D.C. 1996), the court granted plaintiff’s motion for a preliminary injunction and
5 ordered the agency to “comply with plaintiff’s FOIA requests” and file a Vaughn index within 30
6 days. As in Cleaver, the injunction was based upon a finding of “exceptional and urgent need” for 7 disclosure. Id. at 152.<sup>1</sup>

9 The most comprehensive consideration of preliminary relief in circumstances similar to 10 those present here was in Elec. Privacy Info. Ctr. v. Dep’t of Justice (“EPIC”), 416 F.Supp. 2d 30
11 (D.D.C. 2006), a case that Defendant cannot overcome simply by describing as “arguably 12 erroneous[,]” Defs. Opp. at 12 n.5, and “wrongly decided,” id. at 14. Indeed, the government is 13 attempting to relitigate the EPIC holding, parroting the same arguments that were considered – and 14 rejected – by the district court in the District of Columbia less than two years ago, and by this 15 Court recently in Elec. Frontier Foundation v. Office of the Director of National Intelligence, No.
16 07-5278 SI, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 89585.<sup>2</sup>

18 In EPIC, the Justice Department administratively granted a request for expedited FOIA
19 processing upon a finding that, inter alia, the request satisfied the same statutory standard at issue
20 in this case – the request concerned a matter about which there is an “urgency to inform the public
21 about an actual or alleged Federal Government activity,” and was made by “a person primarily 22

---

23 <sup>1</sup> Both Cleaver and Aguilera were decided before Congress enacted the 1996 FOIA amendments and created the 24 statutory right to expedited processing at issue in this case. In ACLU v. Dep’t of Defense, 339 F. Supp. 2d 501, 503
25 (S.D.N.Y. 2004), decided subsequent to those amendments, the court noted that it had previously heard “argument on plaintiffs’ preliminary injunction motion,” rejected the government’s argument that the processing issue was moot because the defendant agencies were responding “as soon as practicable,” and “held that jurisdiction was proper.”

26 <sup>2</sup> This Court relied upon the EPIC decision, and quoted it approvingly, in Elec. Frontier Foundation v. Office of the 27 Director of National Intelligence, where Judge Illston granted EFF’s motion for preliminary injunction and ordered 28 that FOIA requests nearly identical to those at issue in this case be processed within 10 days. See also Gerstein v. CIA,
No. C-06-4643 MMC, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 89883 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 29, 2006) (“Gerstein I”) (citing EPIC favorably and granting a “motion to compel” the processing of a FOIA request within 30 days).

1 engaged in disseminating information.” EPIC, 416 F. Supp. 2d at 34 (quoting 5 U.S.C.
2 § 552(a)(6)(E)(v)(II)). As in this case, despite its decision to grant “expedited processing,” the 3 agency had “neither completed the processing of EPIC’s FOIA requests nor informed EPIC of an 4 anticipated date for the completion of the processing” and the requester moved for a preliminary
5 injunction. Id. at 34-35. In an argument that Defendants repeat verbatim in this case, DOJ
6 “question[ed] the propriety of EPIC seeking preliminary injunctive relief,” and “accuse[d] EPIC of 7 using the motion for a preliminary injunction, which according to the DOJ seeks ‘a version of the 8 ultimate relief’ in the case, as a litigation tactic ‘to artificially accelerate the proceedings in this
9 case.’” Id. at 35; see also Defs. Opp. at 2 (EFF attempts “to accelerate artificially the merits 10 proceedings in this case” and seeks “a version of ultimate relief”).
11

12 Citing the same settled authority that EFF relies upon here, the court rejected the 13 government’s argument:
14

15 DOJ’s argument that EPIC acts improperly in seeking a preliminary injunction is 16 unavailing. On numerous occasions, federal courts have entertained motions for a 17 preliminary injunction in FOIA cases and, when appropriate, have granted such 18 motions. See ACLU v. Dep’t of Defense, 339 F.Supp.2d 501, 503 (S.D.N.Y. 2004)
19 (granting preliminary injunction motion in FOIA case and requiring production
20 within one month); Aguilera v. FBI, 941 F.Supp. 144, 152-53 (D.D.C. 1996) 21 (granting preliminary injunction in FOIA case and requiring expedited processing to 22 be completed within approximately one month); Cleaver v. Kelley, 427 F.Supp. 80, 81-82 (D.D.C. 1976) (granting preliminary injunction in FOIA case and requiring expedited processing to be completed within approximately twenty days); see also
Al-Fayed v. CIA, 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 21476, at *19-20 (D.D.C. Sept. 20, 2000)
(denying preliminary injunction in FOIA case after conducting four-part analysis);
Assassination Archives & Research Ctr. v. CIA, 1988 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18606, at *1-3 (D.D.C. Sept. 29, 1988) (same).

23 EPIC, 416 F. Supp. 2d at 35 (footnote omitted).<sup>3</sup>

---

24 <sup>3</sup> In addition to claiming that EPIC was “incorrectly decided,” Defendants note that “the preliminary injunction entered 25 in that case was later modified upon reconsideration, following a submission by the government regarding its 26 processing capacity.” Defs. Opp. at 18. The modification of the injunction’s dictates (i.e., granting more time) in no
27 way diminishes the fact that the court, in keeping with long-established precedent, found preliminary relief to be 28 appropriate. Indeed, the government concedes that the modification was based upon an agency “submission . . .
regarding its processing capacity” in conformance with the EPIC court’s holding that the “presumption of agency delay raised by failing to respond to an expedited request within twenty days” can be rebutted if the agency meets its burden of presenting “credible evidence that disclosure within such time period is truly not practicable.” EPIC, 416 F. Supp.
2d at 39 (footnote omitted). Here, as we discuss infra, Defendants have not even attempted to meet that burden.

1 Even in those cases where applications for preliminary injunctions seeking expedited
2 processing of FOIA requests were denied, the courts have never suggested, as Defendants imply,
3 that such relief is improper. Defendants cite several cases in which reviewing courts merely 4 determined that the specific facts before them did not satisfy the standard for a preliminary 5 injunction, and thus did not warrant a court order requiring expedited processing. Defs. Opp. at 11;
6 see, e.g., Assassination Archives and Research Ctr. v. CIA, No. 88-2600, 1988 U.S. Dist. LEXIS
7 18606 (D.D.C., Sept. 29, 1988) (denying preliminary injunction motion after conducting four-part
8 analysis); Al-Fayed v. CIA, No. 00-2092 (CKK), 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 21476 (D.D.C. Sept. 20, 9 2000) (same); Judicial Watch v. Dep't of Homeland Security, 514 F. Supp. 2d 7 (D.C.C. 2007)
10 (same).<sup>4</sup> Defendants also cite the recent decision in Elec. Frontier Foundation v. Dep't of Justice,
11 slip op., 06-CV-1773 (RBW) (D.D.C. Sept. 27, 2007) (attached to Defs. Opp. as Ex. 5) in support
12 of its suggestion that preliminary relief is somehow inappropriate in the context of expedited
13 processing. Defs. Opp. at 11. In fact, the court followed EPIC, conducted a preliminary injunction 14 analysis, and concluded that “the agency has effectively rebutted the presumption of delay by 15 providing a detailed explanation as to why the time period prescribed by the FOIA could not be 16 met,” as required by EPIC. See slip op. at 5.

17 While the government suggests that the range of judicial remedies in FOIA cases is limited,
18 there is in fact no such restriction to be found in the statute or case precedent. As the D.C. Circuit
19 has noted, “[t]he FOIA imposes no limits on courts’ equitable powers in enforcing its terms.”
20 Payne Enterprises v. United States, 837 F.2d 486, 494 (D.C. Cir. 1988) (emphasis added), citing
21 Renegotiation Bd. v. Bannerkraft Clothing Co., 415 U.S. 1, 19-20 (1974). “[U]nreasonable delays
22 in disclosing non-exempt documents violate the intent and purpose of the FOIA, and the courts
23 have a duty to prevent [such] abuses.” Id., 837 F.2d at 494 (citation omitted). An exercise of that 24 duty is all that EFF requests here.

---

25
26
27 <sup>4</sup> Indeed, the D.C. Circuit, in its only discussion of the FOIA expedited processing provision, itself applied the 28 preliminary injunction standard in affirming the district court decision in the Al-Fayed case. Al-Fayed v. CIA, 254 F.3d 300, 304 (D.C. Cir. 2001) (court conducted merits review of “whether plaintiffs are entitled to a preliminary injunction”).

1           II. The Government’s Delay in Processing EFF’s “Expedited” FOIA Requests
2           Violates the Statute

3           The government mistakenly asserts that the FOIA “does not require agencies to process
4 expedited requests within a specific time limit.” Defs. Opp. at 13. Such a conclusion would require
5 the Court to ignore both the plain language of the statute and the manner in which it has been 6 construed by the courts for more than 30 years.

7           Defendants read the expedited processing provision of the statute in isolation, divorcing it
8 from the generally applicable 20-day processing time limit contained in 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(6)(A)(i),
9 and the plain language of 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(6)(C)(i), which states:

10           Any person making a request to any agency for records . . . shall be deemed to have 11 exhausted his administrative remedies with respect to such request if the agency
12 fails to comply with the applicable time limit provisions of this paragraph. If the 13 Government can show exceptional circumstances exist and that the agency is 14 exercising due diligence in responding to the request, the court may retain 15 jurisdiction and allow the agency additional time to complete its review of the 16 records.

17 (emphasis added). In Open America v. Watergate Special Prosecution Task Force, the D.C. Circuit
18 construed the provision:

19           to mean that “exceptional circumstances exist” when an agency . . . is deluged with 20 a volume of requests for information vastly in excess of that anticipated by 21 Congress, when the existing resources are inadequate to deal with the volume of 22 such requests within the time limits of subsection (6)(A), and when the agency can 23 show that it “is exercising due diligence” in processing the requests.

24           547 F.2d 605, 616 (D.C. Cir. 1976). See also Exner v. FBI, 542 F.2d 1121 (9th Cir. 1976); Gilmore
25 v. National Sec. Agency, No. C-92-3646 THE, 1993 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7694, at *34 (N.D. Cal. May 26 3, 1993) (Exner adopted a “limited version of the holding in Open America allow[ing] an agency to 27 claim ‘exceptional circumstances’ where it is faced with an unforeseen and unforeseeable increase 28 in the number of FOIA requests”).

          The statute and relevant case law thus provide that standard, non-expedited requests must be processed within 20 days; that judicial supervision of the FOIA process is appropriate immediately upon the expiration of that time limit; and that an agency may be granted “additional time” only when it can show, inter alia, that it “is deluged with a volume of requests for information vastly in excess of that anticipated by Congress.” It defies logic to conclude, as the

1 government would apparently have it, that a request entitled to expedited processing somehow
2 actually imposes a lower burden on a recalcitrant agency. As the court found in EPIC:

3 Congress could not have intended to create the absurd situation wherein standard
4 FOIA requests must be processed within twenty days (unless the agency can show 5 that exceptional circumstances exist for a delay), yet expedited requests empower an 6 agency to unilaterally decide to exceed the standard twenty-day period.

7 EPIC, 416 F. Supp. 2d at 38.<sup>5</sup> The court thus held:

8 [A]n agency that violates the twenty-day deadline applicable to standard FOIA 9 requests presumptively also fails to process an expedited request “as soon as 10 practicable.” That is, a prima facie showing of agency delay exists when an agency 11 fails to process an expedited FOIA request within the time limit applicable to 12 standard FOIA requests.

13 The presumption of agency delay raised by failing to respond to an expedited
14 request within twenty days is certainly rebuttable if the agency presents credible
15 evidence that disclosure within such time period is truly not practicable.

16 Id. at 39 (footnote omitted). See also Gerstein I, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 89883, at **9-10 (this 17 Court adopts EPIC analysis).

18 Here, Defendants do not even attempt to meet that burden.<sup>6</sup> They merely conclude that it is 19 “impracticable” to complete the processing of EFF’s requests (submitted on December 21, 2007)
20 prior to the schedules that the agencies propose. Defs. Opp. at 16. In support of that assertion, the 21 agencies vaguely cite “the existence of classified materials, which . . . contributes significantly to 22 the complexities attendant to processing a FOIA request,” and the routine fact that “documents 23 subject to other exemptions . . . must similarly be identified and, where necessary, redacted, and 24 documents generated by other agencies or authorities must be referred for review back to those 25 same agencies or authorities.” Id. at 15-16 (citations omitted). As this Court noted in a recent case 26 in which defendant ODNI raised an identical argument, such issues are “generically applicable to 27 all FOIA requests that would be received by the ODNI. Defendant has offered no explanation or 28

---

<sup>5</sup> The government makes much of the fact that the legislative history indicates that Congress’ intent was “not to require that [expedited] requests be processed within . . . [a] specific period of time.” Defs. Opp. at 13 (citation omitted). As the EPIC court noted, however, “[t]he legislative history of the amendments makes clear that, although Congress opted not to impose a specific deadline on agencies processing expedited requests, its intent was to ‘give the request priority for processing more quickly than otherwise would occur.’” EPIC, 416 F. Supp. 2d at 38 (citation omitted; emphasis in original).

<sup>6</sup> While arguing that EPIC was “wrongly decided,” the agency does not even mention the “credible evidence” standard in its opposition, let alone explain why an agency should not be required to make such a showing.

1 evidence of the existence of ‘exceptional circumstances’ specific to this case.” Elec. Frontier
2 Foundation v. Office of the Director of National Intelligence, No. 07-5278 SI, 2007 U.S. Dist.
3 LEXIS 89585, at * 15 (emphasis added). Similarly, the agencies fail to provide the Court with any 4 extraordinary information that might justify taking four to five months or longer to process fewer
5 than 2,500 pages (DOJ National Security Division),<sup>7</sup> 2,000 pages (DOJ Office of Legal Counsel),<sup>8</sup>
6 1,500 pages (DOJ Office of Legislative Affairs), 233 pages (DOJ Office of Legal Policy), 913
7 pages (DOJ Office of the Attorney General),<sup>9</sup> and 265 pages (ODNI)<sup>10</sup> identified as responsive to 8 EFF’s FOIA requests. Id. at 6-10.

9 The government’s position here is strikingly similar to DOJ’s in EPIC, where the court
10 noted that the agency was “content to rest on its unsupported allegations that delay is necessary

---

11
12 <sup>7</sup> The declaration of GayLa D. Sessoms stated that the DOJ National Security Division (“NSD”) had completed its 13 search for responsive records and said NSD would inform EFF by March 21, 2008 how many responsive records had 14 been located. Defs. Opp. Ex. 1 ¶ 10. Regardless of the volume, NSD asserted that it would provide an interim response
15 to EFF by April 11, 2008, but declined to commit to a final response date. Id. at ¶¶ 12-13. By letter dated March 21,
16 2008, NSD informed EFF that it had located 2,500 pages responsive to EFF’s request, a “significant volume” of which 17 “includes various Statements and Written Testimony by the Assistant Attorney General for National Security before 18 Congress and the multiple drafts that were generated during the course of finalizing these statements.” Declaration of 19 Marcia Hofmann (“Hofmann Decl.”) Ex. A (emphases in original). The letter asked whether NSD should review all
20 drafts of these materials as it processes EFF’s request. Id. EFF responded on March 24, 2008 that it is willing to 21 remove not only the drafts from the scope of the request, but any final versions of statements or testimony that are 22 already publicly available. Hofmann Decl. Ex. B. EFF expects that this agreement will substantially decrease the 23 number of pages to be reviewed by NSD, and should drastically reduce the amount of time necessary for NSD to 24 process EFF’s request. Id.

25 <sup>8</sup> The DOJ Office of Legal Counsel (“OLC”) has reduced the universe of potentially responsive material to 26 approximately 2,000 pages, a number that is likely to decrease upon further review. Defs. Opp. Ex. 2 ¶ 9. OLC
27 “anticipate[s] issuing at least an interim response by no later than March 25, 2008,” and “could issue a final response to 28 plaintiff’s request by April 22, 2008.” Id. ¶ 9.

<sup>9</sup> The DOJ Office of Information and Privacy (“OIP”) reports that the DOJ Office of Legislative Affairs (“OLA”) has located 1552 pages in response to EFF’s request, the Office of Legal Policy (“OLP”) has located 233 pages in response to EFF’s request, and the Office of the Attorney General (“OAG”) has found 913 pages in response to EFF’s request.
Defs. Opp. Ex. 3 ¶ 23. OIP concedes that these page counts are likely to go down as non-responsive material is removed from the scope of potentially responsive documents. Id. OIP will not even begin consulting other agencies about material in which they may have an interest until March 28, 2008, and expects to send a second round of consultations by April 30, 2008. Id. ¶¶ 26 & 28. The agency “anticipates” providing an interim response to EFF by April 14, 2008, and a final response by May 23, 2008, “assuming all consultations have been returned.” Id. ¶¶ 27 & 29.

<sup>10</sup> ODNI states that it has completed its search for responsive records and located “approximately 185 pages of unclassified material and approximately 80 pages of classified material . . . responsive to plaintiff’s request.” Defs.
Opp. Ex. 4 ¶ 8. ODNI has referred approximately 255 of these pages to other agencies for consultation. Id. ¶ 9. ODNI states that “[t]he agencies to which consultations have been sent have advised ODNI that they anticipate completing their review in approximately three weeks,” and ODNI “anticipates” issuing a final response to EFF request “within three weeks of receive the other agencies [sic] responses to our consultations.” Id. ¶ 12.

1 because EPIC's requests are 'broad' and involve classified documents." EPIC, 416 F. Supp. 2d at 2 40 (citation omitted). Finding that such "vague assertions, unsupported by credible evidence, are 3 insufficient to demonstrate that further delay is currently necessitated," the court noted that "courts
4 often find that one to two months is sufficient time for an agency to process broad FOIA requests
5 that may involve classified or exempt material." Id. (citations omitted).<sup>11</sup>

6 In Gilmore, this Court considered – and rejected – similar agency claims in the context of 7 an Open America enlargement of processing time sought by the National Security Agency. In 8 asserting "exceptional circumstances," the agency claimed that "the highly complex and technical 9 nature of the information dealt with by NSA, and the extreme sensitivity of much of that 10 information necessarily delay the processing of FOIA requests." Gilmore, 1993 U.S. Dist. LEXIS
11 7694 at *36. Noting that "it does not appear that those are acceptable grounds for delay under 12 FOIA," the Court emphasized that "[n]o special exception [from the statutory time limits] was 13 created for any agency, including the NSA and other intelligence agencies that face its particular 14 problems." Id. at **36-37 (emphasis added).

15 Furthermore, we note that the Ninth Circuit has unequivocally held that "practical 16 difficulties" of the sort the agencies cite here do not justify FOIA processing delays:

17 Though FOIA doubtless poses practical difficulties for federal agencies, federal 18 agencies can educate Congress on the practical problems they have, and attempt to 19 persuade Congress to change the law or provide additional funds to achieve
20 compliance. So long as the Freedom of Information Act is the law, we cannot repeal 21 it by a construction that vitiates any practical utility it may have[.]

22 It may be that agency heads, such as the Attorney General in this case, can be forced 23 by the Freedom of Information Act to divert staff from programs they think more 24 valuable to Freedom of Information Act compliance. . . . But these policy concerns
25 are legislative, not judicial, and we intimate no views on them. Congress wrote a 26 tough statute on agency delay in FOIA compliance, and recently made it tougher.

27 Fiduccia v. Dep't of Justice, 185 F.3d 1035, 1041 (9th Cir. 1999); see also Elec. Frontier
28 Foundation v. Office of the Director of National Intelligence, No. 07-5278 SI, 2007 U.S. Dist.
LEXIS 89585, at *16 ("While defendant notes that it has a small FOIA staff, that argument is more

---

<sup>11</sup> By no stretch of the imagination can EFF's requests be characterized as "broad." The EPIC court cited judicial orders requiring "agencies to process over 6000 pages of material within 60 days," and "the 'vast majority' of the processing of 7500 pages to be completed within 32 days." Id. (citations omitted). The amount of material responsive to each FOIA request at issue in this case pales in comparison.

1 properly directed at Congress, not to the courts.”). The “tough statute” that Congress enacted does
2 not countenance a delay of four to five months or longer in the processing of 233 to 2,500 pages of 3 material responsive to “expedited” FOIA requests. Defendants are in violation of the law and have 4 failed to demonstrate an entitlement to any more time than they have already had.

5 III. EFF Will Suffer Irreparable Injury in the Absence of Preliminary Relief

6 As we noted in our opening memorandum, “[c]ourts have recognized that the requisite
7 injury is present, and preliminary injunctive relief is appropriate, in cases [where] expedited FOIA
8 processing is at issue and where time thus is of the essence, because delay ‘constitutes a cognizable
9 harm.’” Mot. for Prelim. Inj. at 16 (Dkt. No. 7), quoting Gerstein I, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 89883, 10 at *15. This Court and others have made it clear that the pendency of legislation related to the 11 subject of a FOIA request weighs in favor of expedited processing. Pl. Mot. at 18-19; see Elec.
12 Frontier Foundation v. Office of the Director of National Intelligence, No. 07-5278 SI, 2007 U.S.
13 Dist. LEXIS 89585, at **19-20 (finding a likelihood of irreparable harm where plaintiff sought 14 records “specifically so that plaintiff, Congress, and the public may participate in the debate over 15 the pending legislation on an informed basis,” and rejecting defendant’s argument that there is no
16 irreparable harm where a legislative debate has been going on for years and because law is always 17 subject to further modification); Gerstein v. CIA, No. C-06-4643 MMC, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18 89847, at *20 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 29, 2006) (“Gerstein II”) (granting expedited processing where 19 court noted that “there is a significant recognized interest in enhancing public debate on potential 20 legislative action”); see also Leadership Conference on Civil Rights v. Gonzales, 404 F. Supp. 2d
21 246, 260 (D.D.C. 2005); ACLU v. Dep’t of Justice, 321 F. Supp. 2d 24, 31 (D.D.C. 2004).

22 In the face of this clear authority, the government argues that EFF has failed to show the 23 requisite injury because the government believes that legislative debate will continue for some time
24 due to the “current legislative stalemate.” Defs. Opp. at 2. Contrary to the government’s claim, the 25 debate in Congress on immunity for telecommunications companies is robust, ongoing and intense,
26 and the White House continues to demand immediate congressional action to shield carriers from 27 accountability for their participation in unlawful surveillance activities. If anything has changed in 28 the wake of the Protect America Act’s expiration, it is that the Administration has stepped up its

1 demands that Congress immediately approve legislation to replace the lapsed law. For instance, on 2 February 22, 2008, shortly after the Protect America Act expired, the Attorney General and 3 Director of National Intelligence wrote a letter to the chairman of the House Permanent Select 4 Committee on Intelligence concerning the “urgent need” to amend the Foreign Intelligence
5 Surveillance Act (“FISA”), declaring that it is “critical to our national security that Congress acts
6 as soon as possible” to pass the Administration’s preferred version of such legislation. Letter from 7 Attorney General Michael B. Mukasey and Director of National Intelligence J.M. McConnell to 8 The Honorable Silvestre Reyes, Chairman House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence,
9 Feb. 22, 2008, <http://www.lifeandliberty.gov/docs/ag-dni-letter-to-chairman-reyes.pdf> (Hofmann
10 Decl. Ex. C.)

11 On March 13, 2008, despite the pressure of the Administration to enact legislation to 12 immunize telecommunications carriers, the House of Representatives passed an amendment to the 13 Senate-modified version of H.R. 3773 that removed language that had been approved by the 14 Senate, and did not provide prospective or retroactive immunity for telecommunications 15 companies. H.R. 3773 (with House amendment to the Senate amendment). Upon learning that the 16 House would consider this amendment, President Bush pushed for an immediate vote on the Senate
17 version of the legislation, stating that members of the House “should not leave for their Easter
18 recess without getting the Senate bill to my desk.” President Bush Discusses FISA, March 13, 19 2008, <http://www.whitehouse.gov/news/releases/2008/03/20080313.html> (Hofmann Decl. Ex. D);
20 see also Statement by the Press Secretary, March 11, 2008
21 <http://www.whitehouse.gov/news/releases/2008/03/20080311-7.html> (Hofmann Decl. Ex. E) (“It is 22 time for House Democratic leaders to get serious about our national security, put aside these 23 partisan games, and bring the bipartisan Senate bill to a vote immediately.”) (emphasis added).

24 EFF seeks access to information “vital to the current and ongoing debate surrounding 25 whether, and how, foreign intelligence surveillance law should be amended, especially with regard 26 to providing legal immunity to telecommunications carriers for their past participation in unlawful 27 government surveillance operations.” Declaration of Marcia Hofmann in Support of Motion for 28 Preliminary Injunction ¶ 21 (“Hofmann Decl. to Mot. Prelim. Inj.”) (Dkt. No. 8). Key members of

1 Congress have indicated in recent months that they are less likely to support a grant of such
2 immunity if the Executive Branch refuses to disclose relevant information. For example, on May 3 21, 2007, Sens. Patrick J. Leahy and Arlen Specter (Chairman and Ranking Member of the Senate
4 Judiciary Committee, respectively) wrote to the Attorney General to reiterate the Committee's 5 longstanding requests for various documents concerning foreign intelligence surveillance.
6 Hofmann Decl. Ex. F. The senators noted that the Committee is considering legislation relating to 7 surveillance activities, and that the requested information is "critical" to the legislative process:

8 [T]he Administration has offered a legislative proposal that it contends seeks to 9 "modernize" the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act (FISA). As you know, the 10 Judiciary Committee has historically overseen changes to FISA and it is this 11 Committee's responsibility to review the Administration's proposal with great care.
12 The draft legislation would make dramatic and far-reaching changes to a critical 13 national security authority. Before we can even begin to consider any such 14 legislative proposal, we must be given appropriate access to the information 15 necessary to carry out our oversight and legislative duties.

16 Id. at 2 (emphasis added). More recently, on October 22, 2007, Sens. Leahy and Specter wrote to 17 the Counsel to the President and reiterated their unwillingness "to consider immunity" if the 18 Administration is not more forthcoming with relevant information.

19 If the Administration wants our support for immunity [from liability for 20 communications carriers], it should comply with the [Committee's] subpoenas, 21 provide the information, and justify its request. As we have both said, it is 22 wrongheaded to ask Senators to consider immunity without their being informed 23 about the legal justifications purportedly excusing the conduct being immunized.
24 Although the two of us have been briefed on certain aspects of the President's 25 program, this cannot substitute for access to the documents and legal analysis
26 needed to inform the legislative decisions of the Committee as a whole.

27 Hofmann Decl. Ex. G. It is thus clear that a decision by the agencies to withhold the requested 28 information while legislation is still pending would, in and of itself, be a "meaningful [albeit perverse] contribution to the ongoing public debate," Gerstein II, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 89847, at *21 (internal quotation marks omitted), and render some members of Congress less inclined to support a grant of immunity. Indeed, Defendants have now acknowledged that each office that received one of EFF's FOIA requests has located responsive documents. Defs. Opp. at 6-10. As for the question of whether the agencies will ultimately disclose "non-exempt" material, even a decision to withhold all of the responsive documents would influence consideration of the pending legislation.

1 The government also argues that “there is no appropriate legal or factual basis to tether
2 releases of agency records in a FOIA case to Congress’s legislative calendar[.]” Defs. Opp. at 21.
3 The government’s assertion flies in the face of the rationale adopted by this Court in Elec. Frontier
4 Foundation and Gerstein II, as well as other courts that have recognized that the value of requested
5 information will diminish after a legislative debate has concluded. See, e.g., Elec. Frontier
6 Foundation v. Office of the Director of National Intelligence, No. 07-5278 SI, 2007 U.S. Dist.
7 LEXIS 89585, at *19 (“irreparable harm can exist in FOIA cases such as this because ongoing
8 public and congressional debates about issues of vital national importance cannot be restarted or 9 wound back.”) (quotation marks and citation omitted); Leadership Conference on Civil Rights v.
10 Gonzales, 404 F. Supp. 2d 246, 260 (D.D.C. 2005) (“FOIA requests could have vital impact on 11 development of the substantive record in favor of reauthorizing or making permanent the special
12 provisions of the Voting Rights Act”); ACLU v. Dep’t of Justice, 321 F. Supp. 2d at 30 (“a 13 principle aim of plaintiff’s FOIA request is to provide information for the ongoing national debate
14 about whether Congress should renew Section 215 and other Patriot Act surveillance provisions
15 before they expire”). As the Ninth Circuit has recognized, “[t]he value of information is partly a 16 function of time,” Fiduccia, 185 F.3d at 1041, and delay in the processing of FOIA requests “may 17 well result in disclosing the relevant documents after the need for them in the formulation of 18 national . . . policy has been overtaken by events.” Natural Resources Defense Council v. Dep’t of 19 Energy, 191 F. Supp. 2d 41, 43 (D.D.C. 2002). While the government blithely contends that the 20 usefulness of the requested information will be “merely postponed” by further processing delays,
21 the relevant precedent recognizes that its value will, in fact, be lost.<sup>12</sup>

22 _____
23 <sup>12</sup> The government also argues that EFF could have filed its motion for preliminary injunction “in early January 2008,” 24 and that this delay undermines EFF’s request for preliminary relief. Defs. Opp. at 20. Plaintiff respectfully submits that 25 the government’s calculation is incorrect. The FOIA provides that a federal agency must issue a determination on a
26 request within 20 working days of receipt. 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(6)(A)(i). EFF submitted its FOIA requests to Defendants
27 by facsimile on December 21, 2007, though the various component offices indicate that the requests were not
28 “received” until December 26 (ODNI) and December 27 (OAG, OLP, OLA and NSD). Hofmann Decl. to Mot. Prelim.
Inj. Exs. O, P, R. OLC’s correspondence does not indicate when that component received EFF’s request, but receipt was not acknowledged until January 9. Hofmann Decl. to Mot. Prelim. Inj. Ex. Q. These dates indicate that EFF could have filed its lawsuit and motion for preliminary injunction no earlier than the last week in January 2008 against OAG, OLP, OLA and NSD, and the second week in February 2008 against OLC, since that component did not indicate that it had received EFF’s request prior to January 9. EFF’s delay in filing the instant motion was also due in part to EFF’s repeated attempts to negotiate a processing schedule with the government, which, if successful, would have made it unnecessary to for EFF to seek preliminary relief. Hofmann Decl. to Mot. Prelim. Inj. ¶ 23.

1 the requested information to the debate in Congress. With that heated legislative debate has now
2 been well underway for months, the agencies assert that it will be four to five months or longer
3 from the date of the requests before they will be able to complete the processing of between 233
4 and 2,500 pages of material responsive to EFF's "expedited" requests.

5 The need for injunctive relief is clear. For the reasons stated above, EFF respectfully
6 requests that its motion for a preliminary injunction be granted.
7

8 DATED: March 25, 2008

9 By /s/ Marcia Hofmann

10 Marcia Hofmann, Esq.
11 ELECTRONIC FRONTIER FOUNDATION
12 454 Shotwell Street
13 San Francisco, CA 94110
14 Telephone: (415) 436-9333
15 Facsimile: (415) 436-9993

16 David L. Sobel (pro hac vice)
17 ELECTRONIC FRONTIER FOUNDATION
18 1875 Connecticut Ave. NW
19 Suite 650
20 Washington, DC 20009
21 Telephone: (202) 797-9009 x104
22 Facsimile: (202) 707-9066

23 Attorneys for Plaintiff
24 ELECTRONIC FRONTIER FOUNDATION
25
26
27
28